

In regards to banks asking for the right to bother me in the evenings trying to sell me something I would never want....NO! This places banks in the same catagory as siding salesmen!